Litigation Support

When providing litigation support in environmental matters it is critical not only to develop the best case for one's client, but also to objectively anticipate and prepare for issues that could be raised by the opposition.

At OES we have the experience to bridge the gap that can exist between science and law. We work hand-in-hand with attorneys to craft the strongest possible case for our clients, ensuring that your legal position is well-supported by science.

Our work with attorneys takes on many different forms:

- Technical Analysis: We both prepare and review Expert Reports.
- Regulatory Analysis: With former State Regulators on staff we have insight into how regulations are interpreted by technical staff.
- Expert Testimony/Depositions: We focus on clearly communicating technical information in "layman's terms" for a non-technical audience, and we assist attorneys in taking depositions.
- Education: By staying abreast of the latest regulatory and technical issues we are able to work with counsel to develop the best strategies and approaches for clients.

At OES, we always strive to be a business partner with you. When it comes to litigation strategy and support, our goal is to partner with attorneys to ensure a sound technical foundation to your legal arguments, focusing on clear communication of technical issues.
